The Church Street Historic District (also known as the East Church Street Historic District) is a local historic district composed primarily of similar, vernacular Queen Anne houses that date to circa 1900. The houses are typically 2 ½ stories in height with multi-faceted roofs of numerous gables. Relatively little ornamentation adorns the buildings. The exteriors are mostly clad with a combination of vinyl and asbestos shingles. Although the integrity of many of the homes has been compromised by the installation of the newer siding, the essential massing, feeling and scale of the district appears to be essentially intact.
