Public worship

1889, 1894, 1903

The congregational history of the Riverside United Methodist Church traces its inception back to 1889, when a group of Methodist followers organized a separate church on the south side of Salisbury. An initial structure was erected in the vicinity of College Avenue and Riverside Drive in 1894. In 1902 a lot was purchased on the corner of Riverside Drive and Winder Street in an effort to relocate the congregation closer to town. The 1894 sanctuary was moved to the new site, and the entrance tower was built with wood cut from the new lot. About the same time the congregation renamed itself Stenge Methodist Episcopal Church of South Salisbury in honor of the district superintendent of the Methodist conference. In 1959 the name was changed to the Riverside United Methodist Church. The single-story, three-bay main block is a common architectural form for rural congregations during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

The Riverside United Methodist Church is located at 608 Riverside Drive at its intersection with Winder Street in Salisbury, Wicomico County, Maryland. The single-story frame church faces east with the gable roofed oriented on an east/west axis.

Built in 1894 and moved to this location in 1903, the single-story gable roofed frame church is supported on a brick pier foundation covered with pressed metal sheets. The exterior is clad with vinyl siding, and the gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the front of the 1894 structure is a two-story entrance and bell tower erected in 1903. The sanctuary is extended to the northeast with a shed roofed addition.

The southeast (main) elevation is dominated by a two-story entrance and bell tower. A modern front door is topped by a colored glass transom that incorporates the church name, "Riverside United Methodist Church." Rectangular colored glass windows pierce the sides of the tower, which is capped by a pyramidal roof. Flanking the tower are single colored glass memorial windows. The edge of the roof is finished with a slightly extended eave. Attached to the northeast side of the main block is a shed roofed addition that is lighted by colored glass windows as well. Colored glass panes frame a clear glass center panel.

The southwest side of the church is defined by a series of three evenly spaced colored glass memorial windows.

The northwest (rear) wall is defined by a shorter single story apse pierced by an octagonal colored glass window, and colored glass windows pierce each side. Attached to the back of the main block is an exterior brick stove stack.

The interior has been remodeled.

About Our Church And It's History

In 1889, a group of Christians living along the banks of the Wicomico River in Salisbury began to gather in a home for Sunday worship. There were several other Methodist Churches in the city, but this little group didn't want to travel "all the way" downtown. Finally, in 1894, they decided to build a church where College Avenue ran down to the river. It was a small structure but large enough for their needs. The congregation decided, over the next seven years that they were too far "out in the country" so they bought a piece of property at the corner of Winder Street and Riverside Road for $150.

In 1903, they put their little church on wooden skids and with a team of horses, pulled their little church about 3/4 of a mile to its present location. There was a big pine tree that was too close to the front door of the church so they cut down the pine tree, had it sawed in lumber and used the lumber to build the current foyer and steeple. The church was named for the District Superintendent at the time, The Stengle Methodist Church. This name was not changed until 1959 when it became The Riverside United Methodist Church.

During the past decade, the Church has taken on the responsibility of ministering to the elderly population of the community. It is adjacent to a senior citizen housing
