It stands on a tall brick basement. Beaded clapboard covers the five-bay by three-bay structure. On the first story facade is a porch almost identical to one on the house at 401 West Federal Street. The main entrance has semi-engaged fluted columns, flanking the door, with sunburst capitals and a pediment over the fanlight. The four windows on the facade have been lengthened and hung with one-pane sash. Other windows throughout have nine over six sash and all windows have dark green louvered shutters. The cornice is unusual with shaped modillions, almost approaching the size of a bracket, beneath which is a series of circles. Two dormers light the attic of the "A" roof. A chimney is set within each gable, painted white
