Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The List house is located near the south end of Berlin's South Main Street adjacent to "Waverly", a notable early 19th century house (WO-81). The house is situated close to the street on a narrow, deep parcel of land. In addition to the early 20th century dwelling, a simple frame garage is located behind the house on the north side.

The 2½-story rectangular gable-roofed frame house has a 3-bay gable front with the entrance located in the central bay. The structure, whose dimensions are approximately 30' x 40', sits atop an ashlar-faced block foundation with a corbeled chimney centered in the ridge of the asphalt roof.

The principal or west facade has a 3-bay, 1-story porch whose roof rises from the 3 sides, supported by Tuscan-style columns. Narrow molding extends across the base of the gable forming a pediment. The windows on this facade and throughout the house are 1/1. The front door has a decorative design of glass panes comprising a large panel in the door.

The south facade contains one of the most distinguishing features of the dwelling, a cross gable extending over a 2-story rectangular bay with a pair of windows flanked by single windows in the side walls. Molding extends across the base of this gable as in the front facade.

On the east facade is a one-story, shed-roofed porch with a modern enclosure, while the north side is distinguished only by irregular window placement, one being a single-sash square window located near the front at the interior stair landing.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The List house in its size, construction and placement on its property is typical of early 20th century residential building in Berlin. Although distinguished by few architectural details, it is nonetheless solidly built, sitting close to the street with a deep garden area in the rear of the property.
