Wesley United Methodist Church
Stockton
Public Worship

c. 1860, 1914

The Wesley United Methodist church is a prominent Gothic Revival frame structure that stands on the north side of the Pocomoke-Stockton Road west of the crossroads. Built in 1914, the large Gothic Revival front section was an addition to a older nineteenth century building evidently erected around 1860. The older structure, now housing a church hall and Sunday school rooms, was obscured when the present sanctuary was erected.

The first church for the Stockton area Methodists evidently stood west of this site and was abandoned when the congregation decided to rebuild at this location. The deed for this property was executed between James H. and Louisa Collins and the Trustees of the M. E. Church of Sandy Hill. Serving on the board in 1870 were John Taylor, William C. Pruitt, Levin Mariner, James H. Collins, and Barnabas Taylor.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Wesley United Methodist Church stands on the north side of the Pocomoke-Stockton Road (MD 366) in the small town of Stockton, Worcester County, Maryland. The single-story Gothic Revival frame church faces south with the principal gable roof oriented on an east/west axis.

The main Gothic Revival church, dated by a cornerstone to 1914, is an addition to an older nineteenth century church apparently built around 1860. The 1914 building is supported on a low masonry foundation, and it is sheathed with a uniform layer of vinyl siding. The steeply pitched roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the 1914 building is a large single-story gable front structure supported on a low brick foundation, and it is sheathed with asbestos shingles. The medium pitched roof is covered with asphalt shingles. When the 1914 addition was erected it was built against the gable front elevation of the original church as well as the entrance and bell tower.

The south (main) elevation of the 1914 building is dominated by a large cross gable pierced by a tripartite Gothic arched window. To each side are smaller pointed arch colored glass windows. The eaves to the roof are extended and the soffits are sloped.

The west gable end is marked by a pair of colored glass lancet windows and a round colored glass window is located in the upper gable. The east gable end of the main church is defined by colored glass windows as well.

To the rear, the old church extends and is now used as Sunday school rooms and a social hall. Large sized twelve-over-twelve sash windows pierce each side, and a shed roofed apse extends from the north gable end. Each side of the apse is pierced by a four-over-four sash window, and a narrow single-flue brick stack rises against the east side.

The interior was not seen.
