Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Frank A., Sr., & Julia K. Widic Farm survives as an early twentieth century farm complex displaying a common linear layout based on utility. The dwelling is located at the road, with the outbuildings arranged to the rear in rows for easy access. The outbuildings pertaining to the automobile and household chores are closest, while those pertaining to livestock and poultry are farther away. The dwelling follows a common form constructed throughout most of the United States in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The Widic Farm illustrates the continued development of Worcester County and the immediate locale in the early part of this century, when truck farming was replacing older agricultural models and new fruit and vegetable crops were on the rise. The raising of chickens for eggs also became a booming industry at this time (Touart 1994:165-167; Truitt and Les Callette 1977:249, 253-255).

The dwelling was constructed in ca. 1913 according to the current owner, Julia K. Widic, who has lived on the property for some 60 years. Deed records are inconclusive about who may have built the dwelling, but Ms. Widic's date of construction is certainly compatible with the Queen Anne form of the building. The outbuildings on the property appear to have been constructed from ca. 1913 through perhaps the 1930s or 1940s. Using the periods from the Maryland Comprehensive Historic Preservation Plan Data, this would place the resource in the Industrial/Urban Dominance period (A.D. 1870-1930). The current legal tax parcel containing the house and outbuildings encompasses 28 acres.

The Frank A., Sr., & Julia K. Widic Farm is recommended ineligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places in accordance with the criteria of eligibility in 36 CFR 60.4. Its integrity of design (mainly the dwelling), materials, workmanship, and feeling has been compromised by alterations. It has no known associations with significant historic events (Criterion A) or persons (Criterion B), it is not significant for its architectural style or design characteristics (Criterion C), and further research of it would not appear to yield information important in prehistory or history (Criterion D).

To the east of the dwelling is a row of three outbuildings, consisting of a shed and two corn cribs. The front-gabled shed has later metal siding, a composition asphalt shingle roof, and a wood four-panel door at the facade. The two front-gabled cribs have later corrugated metal siding and roofing and simple board doors at their facades. Both sit on foundations made of vertical terra cotta pipes.

To the southeast of the dwelling is a large frame barn, a planter, and a shed. The front-gabled barn has been covered with later metal siding and roofing and features two attached sheds at its east end. Within the larger of the two sheds can be seen the former exterior weatherboard wall of the barn and its smaller rear shed. The open planter has a wood frame, corrugated metal sides, and a concrete block base. The frame shed is covered with later corrugated metal siding and roofing and features a fiberglass shed addition off of its south side.

To the east of the above noted outbuildings are two chicken houses. The northern chicken house is of frame construction with metal siding and a corrugated metal roof. A metal hopper is located at the east end. The southern chicken house is of concrete block construction with a corrugated metal roof. Near its northeast corner is a small frame shed.

All of the outbuildings on the property appear to be historic, except for the southernmost chicken house and the planter. A gravel loop drive provides access to and from US 113, and the property features a number of ornamental trees and shrubs as well as gardens and cultivated fields beyond the outbuildings. Also located on the same tax parcel to the south are the dwelling and outbuilding of the Edward B. Mitchell, Sr. House (WO-493).

Alterations to the dwelling include the aluminum siding, the large brick addition at the front, the infilling of the rear porch, and the modern doors, windows, and shutters. Alterations to the historic outbuildings include the later metal siding and roofing that conceals original siding, openings, and detailing.
