The single-family dwelling at 10316 Harrison Road, located south of Berlin, in Worcester County, Maryland is not located in an historic district nor is it considered eligible for individual listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

The dwelling is a large, 2-1/2-story frame American four-square type house, built in the first quarter of this century. It sits upon a low foundation, and is covered with a hipped roof with a hipped dormer located on center of the front elevation. The facade features a single-story hipped-roof porch with tapered wood posts supporting the roof. The dwelling is square in plan, extending two bays wide and two bays deep and is clad with weatherboard siding. Although a good example of the rural American four-square dwelling, the house form is a common form from the period and lacks the architectural distinctiveness necessary to qualify it for listing under Criterion C.

The property is not known to have associations with persons or events significant to our past and is thus not eligible under Criteria A or B.
